RETWEETS

Retweets over time
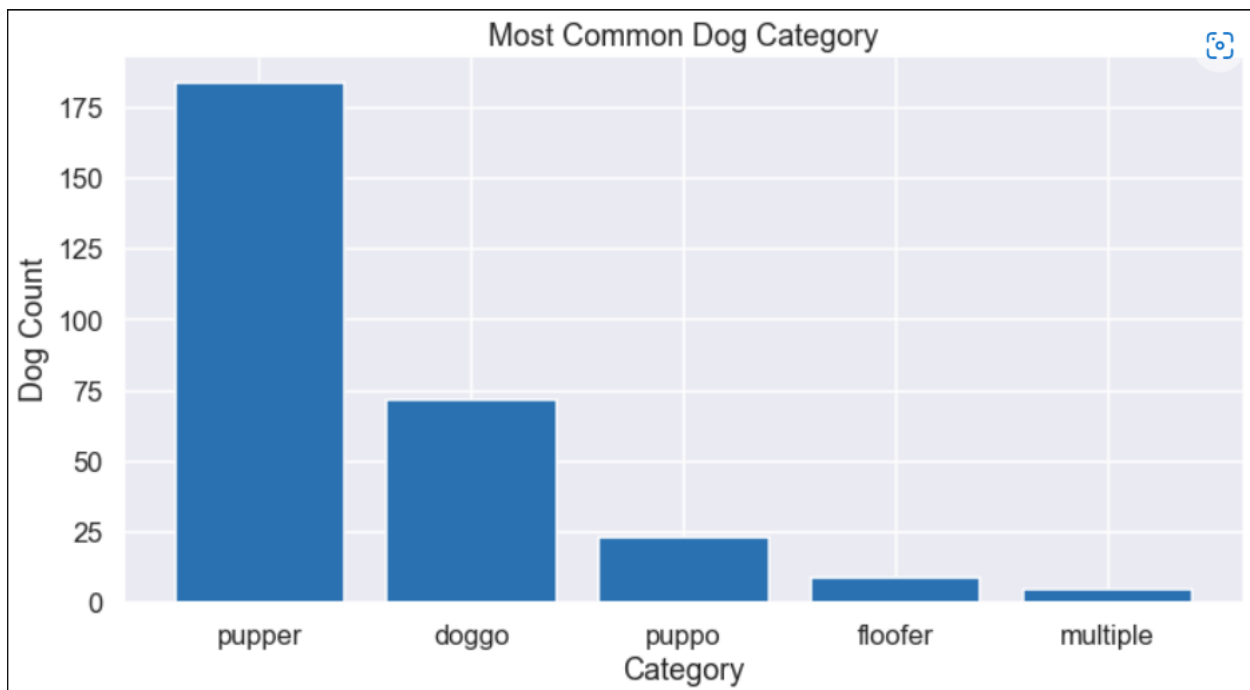

The amount of retweets increases within a month from 0 to about 38000. The chart shows a rapid increase in retweets in the first two months, followed by a significant drop in retweets. In the following months, the course of the curve is again and again characterized by high amplitudes, followed by a reduction in retweets.

FAVOURITES

Favorites over time
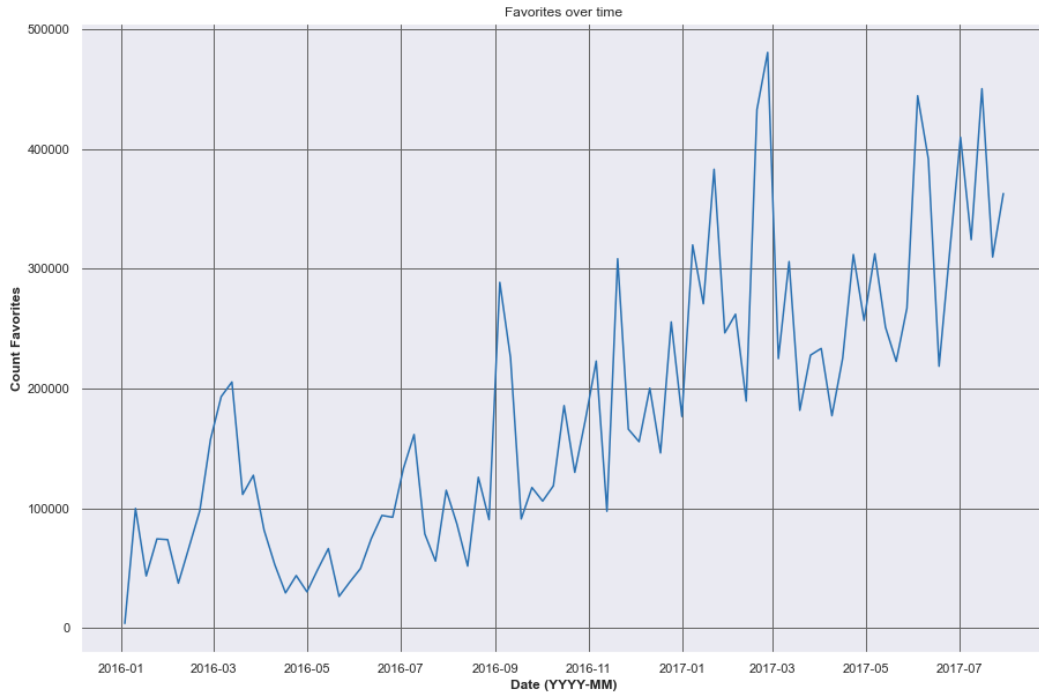

The amount of favorites increases within a month from 0 to about 10000. The chart shows a rapid increase in favorites in the first two months, followed by a significant drop in favorites. After bottoming out in May 2016, the curve is slowly recovering and recording a steady rise. During the increase, there are always very high fluctuations between the individual months.

Retweets and Favorites in Comparison

Retweets and Favorites in Comparision
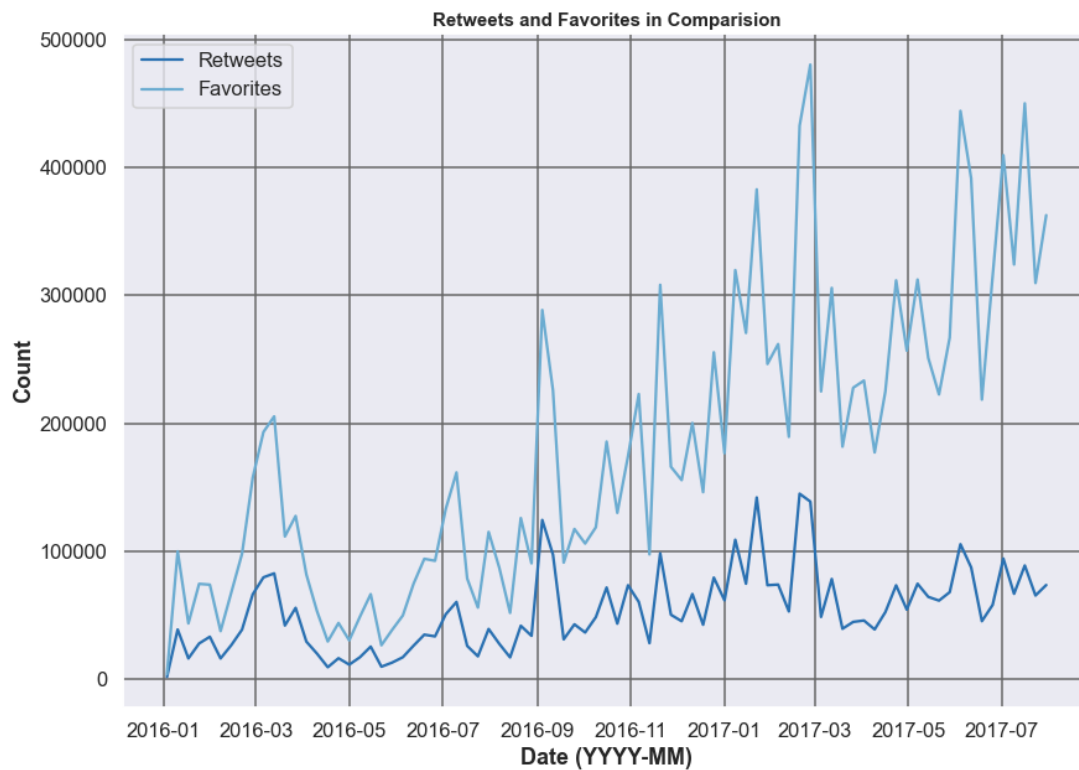

The comparison between the individual graphs shows that both progressions show a significant increase within the first month, followed by a rapid decrease of the graph. As the two graphs progress, it can be seen that the number of favorites is recovering and rising steadily, whereas the number of retweets is not showing any particular rebound. I think the high spikes are caused by especially sweet or interesting dogs.
